

Plan for the unexpected

Hello there,

About all I can say is one can never know how, why, or when one might need to move to a business continuity situation.

We have seen hasty reaction both in the health crisis and the political crisis that has popped up this year.

Last year it was power outages and wildfires. Let's not even talk about the big one that's coming someday without warning.

How does one plan for the unexpected? We have an ideal plan set up for you (our clients) and would be happy to sit down and determine how you can best survive an unplanned disaster.

Keep it simple, and let us plan ahead for you.

David
